

Eoghan McDermott

Having completed his degree in Politics & Irish UCD, Eoghan moved to New York and enrolled in the world- famous Broadway Dance Centre, where he studied with some of the biggest names in dance, with the aim of becoming a commercial music video choreographer.

He has performed all over the world, supporting some of the world's biggest music acts including Rhianna, The Pussycat Dolls and Chris Brown.

Eoghan has presents of The Voice in Ireland and has now finished his fifth series for the programme. He is also the host of Drivetime on 2fm – which is Ireland's equivalent to BBC Radio 1. The show recently enjoyed a listenership increase of 13,000 in the JNLR listenership figures. Upon returning to Ireland, his dancing skills landed him the role of DJ Pete in TG4's award winning drama series, Seacht.

From here Eoghan was picked up by BBC Northern Ireland to present their chat/music show Imeall Geal. This also led him onto Pop4, TG4's flagship pop music program, which he has presented for 3 seasons, as well as his own radio show on Dublin Hit station, Spin1038. Every year he anchors the Irish equivalent of Glastonbury Festival and was also once a professional ice hockey player for Ireland.

It was through this platform that Eoghan was spotted and brought to London to present his own daily radio show on the iconic (now called) Radio X. The station is famous for finding, moulding and breaking some of the biggest stars on TV and radio in the UK. Eoghan's name was added to a line up which has included Ricky Gervais, Russell Brand, Dermot O'Leary, Zane Lowe, and Simon Pegg to name a few! Eoghan stepped into the iconic Drivetime slot on the station.

Along with hosting coverage for X Box's Lovebox festival, Celebrity Super Spa for Channel 5 is when Eoghan made his debut on British terrestrial television.
