

Mandy Henry

Born in Edinburgh, Mandy Henry caught the football bug at an early age - her dad took her to her first match at the age of three! She began her broadcasting career working for Radio Forth FM, before making the move into television with City TV. She started in news and entertainment, but quickly moved into sport, working with all the local football clubs (mainly with Heart of Midlothian FC), but also worked on rugby, golf and tennis.

In 2000, she was headhunted by MUTV, and had no hesitation in joining Manchester United. Mandy has had many high points in her time at the channel, but some of her favourite moments are travelling to Bordeaux to interview Eric Cantona; reporting on the club's pre-season tour of Asia, and (despite the result) presenting the three day build up to the Champions League finals at both Rome and Wembley.

Mandy is also currently a reporter for Premier League Productions at IMG in London, interviewing a host of footballers, managers and reporting on the lead-ups to a wide range of games.

Mandy has worked on BBC Radio 5Live working alongside Alan Green and DJ Spooky on 606. She also reported from various championship and premier league grounds for ITV. Alongside MUTV, Mandy has also become a regular across the BBC since 2012, presenting the latest sports news on the BBC News Channel, BBC World and BBC Breakfast on BBC1. She has also worked on Final Score, bringing score updates from grounds around the country. In 2014, she joined Premier League TV as a reporter covering the teams in the North West, regularly interviewing some of the biggest names in football.

Sport aside, Mandy's other passion is travel, and she writes a travel blog called Travel Lightbulb.

Also passionate about raising money for charity – Mandy has trekked through the Sahara desert, and endured a tough 9 day trek through the Andes to Machu Picchu.
